

Handwritten document in Breton script, likely a marriage record. The text is written in a cursive hand and includes names such as "Renault", "Gouad", "Gouad", and "Gouad". The document appears to be a legal or official record, possibly a marriage certificate or a similar document, given the context of the caption. The text is written in Breton, a Celtic language spoken in Brittany, France. The document is dated 1695 and is located in Malhoure, La Malhoure.
